Helping Rescued Basset Hounds Find Forever Homes Since 2002

UFBH often takes in hounds directly from people who can no longer care for them, preventing them from ever going through shelters. This frees up desperately needed space at shelters for dogs that then have a better chance of being saved. Many others come to us from shelters after being picked up as strays or turned in by owners.

All hounds are spayed or neutered before they are adopted; helping control the over-population of unwanted dogs. All of our rescues are wellness and heart worm tested, micro chipped and are current with all vaccinations. UFBH has saved the lives of over 1,800 since October of 2002.

We know the breed well, placing them in loving homes and offering adjustment and training support to adopting families. From the bottoms of our Basset loving hearts we thank you for your support.
